McVay says dental fee will buy little

By Sue Greene
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The $2 dental fee scheduled to go into effect fall semester probably will not generate enough money to provide a comprehensive dental service, Sam McVay, director of the SIU health service, said Thursday.

"Research we've done so far indicates the $2 fee will buy very little in dental care for 20,000 people," McVay said.

McVay said he opposes an increase in the dental fee, but a fee of $7 to $8 a semester will probably be necessary if SIU is going to provide complete dental service.

Students approved a $2 dental health service fee in the November Student Government election. The Board of Trustees approved the program in February.

McVay said that at the present level of funding, the program could probably provide about 50 per cent of the students with some type of basic service.

Dental nutrition, preventive measures, emergency treatment, inspection, tentative diagnosis and referral to other dentists will be the scope of the program at the current level of funding, McVay said.

"That means if a student needing a lot of dental work comes in, but nothing needs immediate attention, the student will probably be referred to a local dentist, he said.

McVay said the cost of the program is steep because of the current price of dental services and because college students are in an age group of great dental risk.

Providing dental care through a fee program with local dentists could be a more feasible way of establishing a service, McVay said. He added that a contract like the Health Service has with Memorial Hospital of Carbondale is an example of how the service might operate.

Students will pay a set fee and SIU will contract with local dentists to provide services. All students will pay the fee, but only some will actually use the program in a given year, McVay said.

Students in STC's dental hygiene program may become a part of the program, McVay said, although a final

Proposed aid program would pay room, board

By Mark Edgar
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Scholarships to pay for books, room and board at SIU could be approved under an expanded aid program scheduled to be submitted Monday to the Illinois State Scholarship Commission (ISSC).

Joseph Boyd, ISSC executive director, said Friday that the aid proposal would allow the ISSC to grant awards other than those for tuition and fees.

He added, however, that legislation to expand the commission's authority has not been introduced and the amount of the awards has not been set.

"The ISSC is going to ask for more information on the plan before we make any definite decisions on it," Boyd said.

David Eisenman, who prepared the new aid program, could not be reached for comment. Eisenman has been a member of higher education financing commissions.

Under Eisenman's plan, raising the amount students are expected to contribute to their education costs would rise from $750 to $1,000, adding $5 million to the ISSC budget next year.

Eisenman has estimated that the extra $5 million would cover the costs of scholarships beyond tuition and fees.

But ISSC officials have questioned that figure, saying the estimate of the savings from the raising of the self-help figure may be too high.

Ralph Godzicki, ISSC assistant executive director, has said proposed tuition increases at state universities may offset any savings made available by the change.

Currently, about 40 per cent of undergraduate and graduate students receive some form of an ISSC monetary award, ranging from $60 to $800 per year.

ISSC awards for this summer have been eliminated.

In a related matter, the U.S. House Education and Labor Committee and the Senate Resources Committee have recommended that the Basic Educational Opportunity grant be fully funded in fiscal year 1978, which begins July 1.

Congress set the maximum award under the program at $1,800 last year, but President Carter's budget for the coming year includes only enough money to finance the grants at $1,600.

At SIU nearly 20 per cent of undergraduate and graduate students receive the BEOG, a spokesman in the Student work and Financial Aid office said.

ICC cuts rate increase for CIPS to 9.2 per cent

By Sue Greene
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The rate increase requested by the Central Illinois Public Service Co. (CIPS) was cut by more than half by an order issued by the Illinois Commerce Commission (ICC) Friday.

CIPS had requested a 21 per cent electric rate increase from the ICC. An increase of 9.2 per cent was approved after ICC hearings Wednesday and Thursday.

The original increase would have generated $41.6 million for CIPS. The increase approved by the ICC will result in a $18.9 million increase in funds for CIPS.

The original CIPS request had been widely opposed by CIPS customers and by the Southern Counties Action Movement (SCAM), a group organized last fall to fight utility rate increases.

"The decrease verifies that the original CIPS increase was not justified or needed," said Dave G. Lerner, a SCAM steering committee member who attended the hearings.

The ICC also cut CIPS's proposed advertising budget which the company had included under operating expenses. The ICC also issued a mandate to all Illinois utilities stating the advertising expenditures included in a rate increase request must be specifically identified by individual advertising

30 classes cut from CCHS curriculum

By Gerda Ussner
Student Writer

Thirty classes were eliminated in a tentative curriculum for the 1977-78 school year approved by the Carbondale Community High School (CCHS) District 165 board of education.

Classes were dropped from all departments except social studies. Three classes were added in the reading department.

The new curriculum will not go into effect until after students register in May. Classes with five or less students enrolled will be dropped. Those classes with six to 14 students enrolled must be approved, in order to continue, by the department chairman, principal and superintendent.

After notifying 31 employees on March 17 that they would not be rehired next year, the board voted Thursday to post nine faculty positions to be filled. The 31 teachers were dismissed to help decrease an approximate $800,000 deficit.

The positions are for one art instructor, one auto mechanics instructor, two reading instructors, one mathematics instructor, one reading and English instructor, one physical education instructor, and two physical education and driver education instructors. Also, the principal position, now filled by Arthur Black, will be open.

The Carbondale Community High School Education Association (CCHSEA) filed grievances stating that the board had appointed a position which Black was to take as assistant to the superintendent without providing a job description.

Another grievance filed by the CCHSEA was that the board had violated or misapplied the contract by eliminating the school psychologist and apparel processing class.

The board made a motion to post the position of assistant to the superintendent appropriately, but denied the grievance of the eliminated positions on the grounds that they were following the guidelines of the agreements they had with teachers and with the state code.

To fill the nine teaching positions, Reid Martin, superintendent, said the board would notify, by mail, all dismissed teachers that they are eligible to apply for the posted positions. Martin said they would be given first consideration.

The teachers will have 15 days to respond, Martin said.

The board approved the renewal of computer services of McDonnell-Douglas Corp. of St. Louis for the 1977-78 school year for $5452. Martin said it would be less expensive than this year despite a six per cent increase because of increased services.

Computer services include class scheduling and grading.

In reference to the seven-period day, cut from eight periods, Martin said more classes will be taught each period. This year 41 classes are taught during the eighth hour. By shifting students, there will be less in study hall, he said.

Resignations from Robert E. Wargel, math instructor, Roberta Johnson, faculty secretary, and Clifford H. Rowden, custodian, were approved by the board.

Arthur Black, principal at Central, said he checked two possibilities to replace Wargel. The alternatives to replace the math position were either a long term substitute at $25 a day or hiring a person on contract, which would be more expensive.

Teaching positions will be staffed if possible by present staff members.

The board approved CCHS' application to participate in a state Comprehensive Employment Training act at a cost of $132,514. This state aid would help finance special education programs.

A special meeting to canvass the votes from Saturday's board election and to reorganize the new board will be at 7:30 April 14.

Board polls open at noon

Polls will be open from noon to 7 p.m. for Saturday's elections for the elementary and high school boards of education.

Three candidates are running for two seats in Carbondale Elementary School District 96. They are Mara Lou Hawse, Charles Reno and Elsie Speck.

The five candidates running for three three-year terms on the Carbondale Community High School (CCHS) District 165 board are Barbara Bennett, Carol McDermott, Bill Orthwein, Mary S. Walker and John Baker Wesley Gibson and Bill Schwegman are competing for a one-year term on the CCHS board.

Polling places for both boards will be at Bowen Gym at CCHS, the CCHS Vocational Center on East Main Street, Parrish Elementary School and Winkler Elementary School.

Additional polling places for the CCHS board will be at De Soto Grade School, Glendale Grade School, Unity Point Grade School and Giant City Grade School.

Thompson proposes review of 100 state programs

CHICAGO (AP)—Gov. James Thompson proposed Friday creation of a 13-member committee to review nearly 100 licensing and regulatory programs in the state that could be headed for the scrap heap.

Thompson's proposal came in a package of so-called sunset legislation, providing for the automatic termination of an agency or program on a set date.

The approximately 100 programs involved automatically would be scheduled for termination on a staggered basis between 1979 and 1983, pending the committee's recommendations.

Rabin's cabinet maneuvers for top post

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP)—Stunned by Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's dramatic resignation, Israel was in political turmoil Friday, with Defense Minister Shimon Peres and Foreign Minister Yigal Alon maneuvering for the top post.

The turmoil raised doubts whether the Labor party, which has governed Israel since its founding in 1948, would be able to retain power after the May 17 elections.

The developments also clouded prospects for a resumption of Middle East peace talks since it was more uncertain than ever who would lead the Jewish state after next month's balloting.

Machine-gun ambush kills two in Belfast

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP)—A machine-gun ambush killed two policemen and seriously wounded a third north of Belfast Friday, security authorities said.

The attackers, who police said were "certainly Provisional IRA," opened fire from behind bushes as the police Land-Rover vehicle traveled in open country near Magherafelt, a market town in County Londonderry.

DE editor selected for fall semester

By Mark Edgar
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Steve Lambert, junior in journalism from St. Charles, has been named student editor-in-chief of the Daily Egyptian for fall semester.

In announcing the appointment, George Brown, director of the School of Journalism, said Lambert, 20, had experience in the newsroom and had spelled out plans for the newspaper.

Lambert, who joined the staff in January, covers collective bargaining and the administration.

Lambert said Friday that editorial pages "should allow more participation by outside groups."

Citing the controversial tenure and promotion recommendations by Frank Horton, vice president for academic affairs and research, Lambert said he would like to give Horton a chance to reply to criticism of his recommendations in the editorial pages.

"I would like to see more differing views of people in the news, even at the expense of reducing the number of stories by syndicated columnists,"

Lambert said.

As for other goals, Lambert said that the coverage of entertainment and features should be expanded.

"Human interest news is a type of reporting that students can better relate to," he said.

Lambert said he would pick the rest of his staff in two or three weeks.

A graduate of St. Charles High School, Lambert attended SIU in 1974, transferred to Northern Illinois in 1975 and then came back to SIU in 1976.

Where did the time go? At SIU Friday, a mechanical failure in the campus-wide clock system had students and faculty members asking that very question.

For more than twelve hours, minute hands could be seen keeping pace with second hands as they raced around the clock.

The clocks went haywire at about 3:30 Friday morning, Anthony Blass, director of the Physical Plant said. "A mechanism broke down in the master clock."

The master clock, located in the central control section of the Physical Plant, controls the operation of all classroom clocks on campus.

The clocks were fixed at about 4 p.m. Friday.

Stroke club

Members look to each other for encouragement

By Dennis DeRosetti
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Four years ago Clark Gorhame was helping a friend build a cement-block wall in the hot afternoon sun. He went to bed that night feeling fine but when he awoke the next morning he could not move.

At the age of 50, he was suffering a stroke.

For the next two years he felt helpless and useless. He just sat in his small apartment alone waiting to die.

But Gorhame, now 54, suddenly realized he was still a living individual and could be of use to someone in some way. He decided to try, in some way, to help other people who had suffered strokes realize that their lives were not over either.

The result of his efforts, along with those of the Illinois Heart Association and Memorial Hospital of Carbondale, was the formation of an organization called the Jackson County Stroke Club.

The Stroke Club is open to all persons who have suffered strokes and members of their families. However, only eight persons now belong to the club.

Meeting on the third Thursday of each month in the high rise apartment building at 1425 Old W. Main, the club is structured to give stroke victims an opportunity to see how other victims are overcoming their problems and to give each other encouragement.

"We want to let them know they can get better," said Iva Christian, president of the Stroke Club. "After a person has suffered a stroke, she may not be able to lead a normal life but at least she can do some useful things."

A stroke victim herself while in her mid-40's, Mrs. Christian, now 53, said each meeting includes an outside speaker, such as a nurse or doctor, to answer questions and to give home health care and dietary information. She said a social hour that includes refreshments also is a regular part of the meetings. During this time, she said, members talk with each other about their problems and give encouragement to those who need it.

Members have recently started to visit stroke victims while they are still in the hospital. "We just want to let them know they are not alone and we are here willing to help them recover," she said.

Both Gorhame and Mrs. Christian quickly pointed out that the group is no way wanting to appear as a medical organization. The group is endorsed by several medical personnel in the county, though.

Gorhame, vice president of the club, said the main goal at this time is to get more people informed about the existence of the club and to show people how they can be helped by attending the meetings.

"We need to build our membership so we can do more things," he said. "Also, we have no outside funding and depend solely on donations from members. You know, if a guy has an extra dollar, fine. If not, nothing is said."

Gorhame explained that strokes can hit anyone at any time and each one is usually different in its severity. He estimates there are hundreds of people in Carbondale alone who are eligible to join—and benefit from the club. "Most stroke victims cannot drive and find it difficult to make it to a meeting. We would like to solve this problem somehow, but just don't know to go about it," he said.

"Most strokes come out of the clear blue—you never expect them. People who have had a stroke have to make themselves overcome it or it will be sure to get you."

Student body president hopeful announces platform

Independent party candidate names running mate

By Kenin-Lee Hicks
Student Writer

Pete Allison, candidate for Student Government president, announced his running mate Friday.

Allison chose Jeff Mills, a freshman in political science, to run with him on the Independent ticket.

At a press conference with the two candidates, Mills said, "I feel that the student senate needs to be sped up in its actions and I think that it needs to do what it does do faster."

Mills said that an example of speeding up action would be to limit the number of readings of bills and resolutions by the Student Senate.

Mills is substitute member of the Triad House Council and president of Allen II.

Allison announced six objectives he would attempt to accomplish if elected:

—To establish a student fee board. Board members would be students elected in a general election. Allison said, "We need more student input in University proposals for spending of student fees."

—To reform present state and federal guidelines for student aid. Allison said that the present guidelines have not taken into account rising student costs such as the increase in tuition and fees. Allison also said that he would be working with the National Student Lobby and the Association of Student Governments.

—To end discrimination toward handicapped students. Allison said that he would like to meet with Central Scheduling staff and arrange for classes most popular with handicapped students to be held "or at least one section be scheduled where accessible to those students."

—To establish University guidelines for appeals or grievances of students. "If there was a uniform system, it wouldn't matter where one filed a complaint... because all procedures would be the same," Allison explained that the procedures for appeals or grievances differ in various departments and colleges.

—To promote better relations between students and the community. Allison said that students should have more input into the community, such as speaking out on legislation dealing with landlord-tenant issues. Allison said according to present laws, landlords aren't required to put locks on doors.

—To work towards total reorganization of Student Government. Allison said there is "much duplication of programs in major constituencies on campus." Many groups want the same things, Allison said, but they don't know that they each want them. "We want to see these two come together," he said.

CIPS rate hike cut programs, Judy Vandewater, from the ICC, said Friday.

The advertising figure approved was $129,000. CIPS requested $258,000. The ICC issued the mandate, because it felt more information was needed before it could fairly determine who should bear increased advertising costs, Vandewater said.

Garner said SCAM claims victory for the cut in the rate request, but criticized the commission for granting an increase to "a utility whose appetite for skyrocketing sales and profits never seems to be satisfied."

The increase will mean electric bills for 500 kilowatt hours of electricity consumption will increase $3.54, Vandewater said. The ICC said bills for this amount of electricity will be about $24.

The commission also granted CIPS a 4.7 per cent increase in natural gas rates. The increase will provide CIPS with $2.7 million in additional funds, Vandewater said.

The rates will be effective as soon as CIPS files the new rate sheets the ICC requires. Vandewater said, CIPS would probably file the sheets sometime early next week.

Senate ponders sex limitations

By Arthur Hoppe

Our Senators, in hopes of regaining the admiration of every little child in the land, have been working on a Code of Ethics so that henceforth they'll know the difference between right and wrong. That's good. They've already decided that it would be wrong for them to go out and earn by the sweat of their brow more than 15 per cent of their salaries—or $8,625 a year. But it is right for them, they feel, to accept all the unearned income they can get.

Already this has won them the respect and emulation of little children everywhere. There are three in my neighborhood alone who promptly quit their paper routes, demanded portfolios of tax-free municipals from their parents and are well on the way to making something of themselves.

But will a poorer Senator necessarily be a better Senator? Should money be the only criterion? What about—let us face the question—sex?

Fortunately, one of the most powerful men in the Senate, Senator Bagley Boodie, has faced that very question. His proposed amendment to the Code of Ethics would limit the earned outside sex of all Senators to 15 per cent of that which they now received at home.

"We Senators are very busy men," he explains. "We're always making laws, making friends, making money and we have secretaries, too. Now if going around making money on the outside interferes with a Senator's duties, then certainly going around making whoopee on the outside will do likewise."

Boodie defined "earned sex" as requiring such activities as purchasing flowers or candy, writing mash notes, making seductive telephone calls, renting motel rooms and supervising office hiring.

"All these things consume a Senator's valuable time," he said, "and should be limited so that we may serve the public instead."

He proposed no limitations, however, on unearned sex. "As far as I'm concerned," he said, "it's only a dream."

As with outside income, Boodie vigorously opposed any "full disclosure" requirement for outside sex. "Like any other man, a Senator is entitled to his private affairs," he said, "and I will continue to defend that position as long as Mrs. Boodie lives."

Limitations on money and sex do not, of course, represent the only efforts the Senators are making to improve their image in this post-Watergate era.

An amendment to limit outside drinking to 15 per cent of inside drinking is being viewed with favor—particularly since it would be in effect only from Nov. 15 to March 1.

Unfortunately, there has been no debate on whether attempts by the Senate to hoodwink the public are right or wrong. It thus appears this activity will remain unlimited.

Graduate assistants don't need collective bargaining

By Robert Fancher

Graduate student representative to the Graduate Council

Currently graduate assistants are being asked to vote on whether they wish to be involved in collective bargaining. I should like to assert that on the three main questions now before the graduate assistants we should vote, "No," and I should like to argue for this position.

The first question is the general one of whether there should be collective bargaining for graduate assistants. There should not be. Graduate assistantships should be first and foremost financial aid to enable us to attend SIU; the work requirement for graduate assistants (G.A.'s) is necessary to enable the University to put such a large amount of money into financial aid rather than into faculty salaries. Financial aid is something given to one, not something to be demanded, and one does not bargain for aid given. Further, assistantships are also recruiting tools; they may be offered to the best students available in order to secure for SIU such high quality students. This means two things: (1) assistantships should be under the control of those people responsible for the quality of the University on a long-term basis, and (2) assistantships require competition between students, not collectivism among them. Finally in this regard, G.A.'s are students and therefore should not have their time and energy distracted from study by having to participate in union activities. There will be plenty of time for such activities when we can control to some extent the work assigned to us rather than having to meet assignments given by teachers—i.e., after we are out of school.

The next question is whether G.A. collective bargaining, if it comes into existence, should be through membership in the faculty's collective bargaining unit. A negative answer to this question follows from three considerations. First, G.A.'s are not faculty and their stipends are not salaries—as evidenced by their tax-exempt status. Second, G.A.'s would be all too easily coopted by faculty who wanted to price assistantships out of the market in order to secure for themselves extra pay for the work that G.A.'s formerly did—or to get the money some other way, perhaps. Both of these are relatively minor points, though G.A.'s could be made faculty, and shrewd students could avoid being coopted. The third and decisive point is that the autonomy of student politics would be severely compromised. Since faculty political fortunes) or who might not really know the conditions for the welfare of serious students (would serious scholarly interests be a prerequisite for union power?). The first option is simply inconsistent with what it means to be a student. The second might well place us in a worse position than we are now—at least now the people who control assistantships are concerned to get good students here and to educate them well so that the school's reputation may be enhanced. Accordingly, a union shop for G.A. bargaining would be a mistake.

None of this is to imply that the life of a G.A. is full of sweetness and light. Some G.A.'s—less than ten per cent of them, though—are expected to perform half-time faculty duties on assistantships, and this is wrong. To remedy this, a distinction should be made between G.A.'s and "Graduate Instructors"—the latter being any student assigned to direct teaching (except for labs and study groups). I have introduced a motion before the Graduate Council to make this distinction and to pay Graduate Instructors on the same pay scale as other Instructors. To all the particulars of that motion we need not give attention here. The point is that those G.A.'s who are not really G.A.'s but cheap labor need not be relevant to the questions at hand. Those of us who are really G.A.'s should be glad to do the work required, since assistantships enable us to go to school without mortgaging our souls. Most of us do not have the degrees necessary to gain our positions as professionals rather than students. There will be plenty of room for screaming about our salaries after we have gained our educations. Most of us, though could hardly afford such educations were it not for assistantships, and for this aid we should be glad.

would by their sheer numbers control the union, and since the union would contract our pursestrings and perquisites, we would have to acquiesce to powerful faculty in non-union controversies. If we antagonized them outside the union, they could screw us within it. This is a tremendous threat to the integrity of student political activity.

The final question asks whether G.A. collective bargaining should be shop. Mandatory membership in a union would mean one of two things for students. Either our study time would be, in effect, mandatorily reduced by our union activities; or we would have to forego participation and leave our economic fates in the hands of people whose primary concern might not be student welfare (faculty might be concerned more with themselves, and students in positions of union power might be more interested in their own

'Twelfth Night' to be performed outside Shryock

The whimsical comedy, "Twelfth Night," will be performed by the National Shakespeare Company at 3 p.m. Sunday on the steps of Shryock Auditorium, with disguises, lovesick lords and ladies, drunken buffoons, mischievous pranks and preposterous challenges.
From the famous opening lines, "If music be the food of love, play on," to Feste the clown's plaintive songs, and even the heroine's name, the imagery of honeyed music gently sets the tone.

In case of rain, the performance will be inside Shryock Auditorium.
The play is a presentation of the Graduate Student Council and University Convocations.

Carbondale Primavera bike race set

By Jim Miesman
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

The fourth annual Carbondale Primavera bicycle race, which will draw an estimated 400 entries vying for over $2,500 in prizes, is scheduled Saturday and Sunday in Carbondale.

The largest prize of the weekend will be the $300 won by the senior men's rider who finishes highest in the combination of Saturday and Sunday races.

The races, all sanctioned by the United States Cycling Federation (USCF), will feature both road and criterium competitions.

Saturday's race, the Campus Lake Road Race, includes a 100-mile jaunt for senior men starting at 1 p.m. Competition runs from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. with races starting on McLafferty Road, west of the SIU campus.

The Carbondale Criterium, a shorter race over a much tighter course than Saturday's road race, is scheduled from 1 to 6 p.m. Sunday. Highlight of the racing is the 2:15 p.m. 35-mile, senior men's race which has $800 in prizes at stake. Sunday's racing starts at Mill and Poplar, just northeast of the SIU campus.

An added attraction to Saturday's racing is that junior, and senior men races have been designated as Olympic Development Races by the USCF. The races help qualify competitors for possible international and Olympic racing. The junior race starts at 8:30 a.m.

Steve Loete, race chairman, explained that only about 14 races each year are designated as Olympic Development Races. He said that racers who wish to be considered for international competition enter the races and earn points for finishing in the top twenty.

He said the racers with the top-sixty point totals after the 14 races qualify for a week of expanded racing in the last week in August, from which United States international teams are chosen.

That's one reason why Loete calls this year's field the best he's seen in the four-year history of the Primavera.

"We're going to have the best talent we've ever had," Loete said. "It's the best cycling event of the year in Southern Illinois."

The current U.S. national road champion, Wayne Stetina, is entered and is considered the favorite.

But competition will come from 1976 Primavera champion Jim Criss, 1975 Primavera champion Jim Meyer and Jim Hertz, a Carbondale cyclist who is the 1976 Illinois road race men's champion.

Saturday's Campus Lake Road Race is over a 24 mile (4 km) course with all riders in the same class starting simultaneously.

The race starts on McLafferty Road and runs through Campus Lake Road, which contains hairpin turns and S-bends.

Sunday's Criterium course is a mile and begins at Mill and Poplar Streets, heads west to Rawlings and north to Freeman heading west. A quick turn on Mill eastbound turns into Lincoln Drive via a chicane, a short sharp S turn, and back to Mill Street.

The Sunday race is more geared to spectators because the race is over a shorter course with many sharp turns, according to Loete.

A minor highlight is in Sunday's senior men's race as lap races called primers where prizes will be awarded to one-lap race winners. Thus, a competitor, who doesn't win the race, can still win prizes.

Two matches set for women netters; Briggs eyes 20th, 21st straight

By Rick Korch
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

After suffering two losses to open its season last weekend, the SIU women's tennis team will try to get rid of the goose egg in the win column Saturday in Champaign. The team has two matches scheduled, with Illinois and Kentucky.

The Saluki, 0-2 this season, beat Illinois during the fall season, although Coach Judy Auld said that doesn't mean anything.

"Illinois may have picked up somebody, or we may not have it together yet," she said. Kentucky is 12-2 so far this season.

Sue Briggs will again lead the SIU women into competition. Briggs, the only Saluki to win in singles so far this season, is 2-0, and holds a 42-7 mark for her two years at SIU after transferring from Arizona. Briggs has now won 19 straight matches in two seasons.

But she's still not playing up to her best form, according to Auld. "She's not really playing great, yet," said the coach. "She still lacks concentration, but she should get it all together this weekend."

The other players are Marsha Bladel, Sue Cispky, Shar Deem and Carol Foss. The Breite and Mauri Kohler, who both missed last weekend's matches, will make the trip, and will vie for the No. 6 singles spot and play doubles.

"I can't tell if the team has improved over last weekend," Auld said, "because they haven't played any competition. We're just working on keeping the ball in play and letting the opponent make the mistakes. That way you don't beat yourself. If you can hit the ball back one more time than your opponent, you'll beat her."

"But we have a very young team," Auld continued, referring to the fact that only one player, Deem, will graduate next month.

"I just have to wait and watch the younger players develop over the next couple years, but the problem is that they want to win bad now."

Decathlon set

The three SIU entrants have their sites set on the Illinois Intercollegiate decathlon competition, which will be held on May 5 and 6 at Naperville. Meet coordinator and SIU Assistant Track Coach Bill Webb, who is a former decathlon competitor himself, expects a very competitive meet, with close competition in the pole vault.

Other meet participants will be Jim Giesman of Iowa Wesleyan and Ken Mauer from the College of DuPage.

Events to be run on Sunday will be the 100-meter dash, long jump, shot put, high jump and the 400-meter dash. On Monday, the 110-meter high hurdles, discus, pole vault, javelin and 1,500-meter run events will be contested.

Only 100-meter loss for Kee in NCAA finals

"The difference between winning and losing is so minute," he said. "That I could lose any time. Someone else could have a good day, and I could have a bad day." He says he's been "lucky" so far.

That's except for his sixth-place finish last year in the NCAA meet.

"That was one of my worst races ever," he says looking back. "I should've been much higher."

Kee's fastest times are 9.3 wind-aided in the 100-yard dash, and 10.0 hand-timed in the 100-meter dash, which is comparable to a 9.2 100-yard dash.

Kee also runs the 200-meter dash, and won five last year, plus two more so far this year.

Although Hartzog said Kee's best is in the 100, "He could be as good as he wants to be in the 200." Kee has run the 200 in 21.1 so far this year, only two-tenths away from meeting the NCAA qualifying mark.

One of the ironmen of the team, Kee also runs the last leg of the 400-meter relay, and has run the 440. During the indoor season, he ran the 60, 300 and sometimes a leg of the mile relay.

"He has more potential than any one of the five world record holders that I've had," Hartzog remarked. "But whether he does it?"

Outlook sunny, warm for Saluki nine

By Dave Hens
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

Nice weather and a big crowd. Those are the two ingredients that the baseball Salukis are hoping for this weekend when Louisville comes to town for a 1 p.m. Saturday doubleheader and a 1 p.m. single game Sunday.

"Baseball is a warm weather game," said SIU Coach Itchy Jones. "The players, fans and coaches look forward to it."

Jones and his Salukis are confident that, with the warmer weather and a big crowd, they will break out of the batting slump that has plagued them in the early going, leaving them at 10-6.

"We haven't played poorly yet, but we haven't put it all together yet, either," said Jones, who will use lefty Rob Simond (1-3) and righty "Buster" Keeton (2-1) in Saturday's doubleheader. "Our pitchers have done a good job this year, and for a lot of teams we've scored well—but not for us."

"We've been working real hard on hitting this week," added Jones, who is zeroing in on becoming the "winningest" baseball coach in SIU history. Jones, with a record of 276-76-3, is one victory behind Abe Martin's mark of 277-154-2.

Louisville won two of three games in a series played in Carbondale last year, but the Salukis hold an 11-3 margin in the overall series.

The pitching ace of the Louisville staff, George Hawley, will not be in action this weekend. Hawley is in a Louisville hospital, where he underwent surgery to have his right arm amputated. Hawley slipped and fell on his elbow a couple months ago. When the pain persisted for months, Hawley discovered a bacteria had grown and spread in the bone marrow and surgery was necessary.

Louisville comes into the weekend series with a 16-12 record. Coach Jim Zerilla will send Mike Shields (3-1) and Don Gatian (2-1) to the mound Saturday and Brandon Chesser (1-2) Sunday.

The Salukis play a doubleheader at the University of Missouri Monday and a single game at Washington University Tuesday.

Jones said that whoever doesn't pitch in the weekend series will get the nod for the Monday twin bill.

"The guys have been taking batting practice against our pitchers this week," said Jones. "We don't want them batting against guys just lobbing them in."

Saluki fans will be treated to a "Greek Day" picnic north of the field following the Sunday game. The Inter-Greek Council is sponsoring the bash, which is celebrating the recognition of three new fraternities and sororities—Phi Sigma Sigma, Triangle and Sigma Phi Epsilon. Music will be provided by "Real to Real," and the public is invited.

SIU-Illinois State rivalry resumes in softball games

By Lee Feinsow
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

At 2 p.m. Sunday the women's softball team, 2-0, will take on defending state champ Illinois State University in a doubleheader on the field across from the new recreation building. The games will continue a long rivalry that stems not only from softball, but other sports as well.

"I really want to beat them," outfielder Robin Deterding said. "They beat us in volleyball and basketball, so I've never been on a team that has beaten them," the freshman said.

For the last 10 years or so, ISU and SIU have been about the only teams to fight it out for state titles in basketball and softball. Lately ISU has had the edge, and the fact that many of the women on the softball team played on the basketball team makes the goal of beating the Redbirds something to shoot for.

Last season the Salukis beat ISU at home in the regular season, but the Redbirds knocked off SIU in the first round of the state tournament.

"At this point I'm not too sure as to what they have," SIU Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said. "Last year she (Coach Jill Hutchinson, who is also the basketball coach) had mostly freshmen and sophomores. I'd assume that this year they'd all be better."

"They've had a good program for years. Last year they had a balanced team, putting pitching and aggressiveness together very well. Our games with them have always been hotly contested, pitting two teams with similar strategies," Brechtelsbauer said.

Brechtelsbauer plans to go with the same starting lineup the team fielded last weekend. Helen Meyer will pitch the first game, and maybe the second, but the coach isn't sure.

Decathlon slated: Hancock entered

The first Saluki Easter Decathlon, featuring some of the top decathlon performers throughout the Midwest, will be held on Sunday and Monday at McAndrew Stadium. Competition will begin at 1:00 p.m. both days.

An eight man field is expected, which includes former Saluki Bill Hancock, world record holder in the decathlon high jump.

The field will include Bob Crites of Indiana, who is a 17-foot pole vaulter, Steve Calloway from the Indiana Track Club who has vaulted over 16 feet and Tom Currier from Kansas.

The two-day affair will also feature Saluki competitors Mark Conard, Doug Smith and Chip Shirley. Conard, has gone 16 feet in the pole vault for SIU and scored a lifetime best of 6,175 points in decathlon competition.

Place your bets on Kee in the 100

By Rick Korch
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

When Saluki sprinter Mike Kee steps into the starting blocks of the 100-meter dash at 5:25 p.m. Saturday in the dual meet against Indiana, his winning is almost assured.

That's because Kee has only lost one 100-yard or 100-meter dash in his two years competing at SIU—and that was last year in the finals of the NCAA championships when he finished sixth. That wasn't bad for a freshman.

In the last two years, Kee has never lost a preliminary race in the 100. He has won the finals 12 times. And he hasn't met any shoddy competition. To his credit (last year, are first places in the Kansas Relays, the Drake Relays, the Illinois Intercollegiate and the Valley Championships among others).

Saturday's home opener dual track meet between SIU and Indiana will start with the field events at 2:30 p.m. east of the Arena. The McAndrew Stadium events will begin at 4 p.m. and the races start at 4:30 p.m. Admission is 50 cents for SIU students and $1 for all others.

Kee has already won four 100-meter races this spring, and isn't even at top shape since he sat out last fall.

"I'm not in shape yet," he said during practice earlier in the week. "I didn't work out all fall, and when I started running again in January, it was too late."

Daily Egyptian Sports

Kee didn't have a particularly good indoor season, but he still qualified for the NCAA championships, although he lost in the trials of the 60-yard dash.

"I'm just starting to get in shape now," he said. "I still have a long road to go. Hopefully, I'll be ready by the Kansas Relays (in two weeks)."

Even though he's been winning so far this spring, he said his running has just been "adequate." But even running what he calls "adequate" qualified him for the NCAA meet again this year.

Kee was highly recruited coming out of Boston's Rindge Technical High School. Before he started at SIU, Lew Hartzog knew what kind of ability he had.

"I was fortunate to get him," Hartzog now says. "Everyone in the U.S. took a shot at him."

"Mike's just in the growing stages now," the coach said. "But he doesn't start well. He doesn't put complete concentration in the first 30 or 40 yards of each race."

"If and when he does—and it's a matter of when he corrects this, he could be one of the greatest sprinters who ever lived. He's not even close to tapping his ability," said Hartzog.

Kee admitted a lack of concentration, and said he's trying to work on coming out of the blocks faster. He attributes his speed to his acceleration, and "my burst at the end of the races."

"He has the greatest acceleration in the last 30 yards that I've ever seen," Hartzog said. "And that includes the really great sprinters."

"I don't want to compare Mike with Ivory yet. I'd rather wait, he said, probably thinking of the day he will. "Ivory ran all out from the blocks. Mike doesn't do this yet."

A smile then came across Hartzog's face as he said, "And I'm looking forward to when he does."

Even though Kee could be considered one of the fastest sprinters in the country—if not the world—he knows that any time he races he stands a chance of losing.
